User Story 3: As a logged in user I want to keep track of my calories.

Description: The user can navigate to the calorie tracker feature where the page will display the total calories they've consumed so far for the day as well as a list of items that they've eaten and how many calories they were. If a user wants to log additional calories all they need to do is click on "Add Calories" and a popup will open which allows the user to enter the name of the food or beverage they consumed and the calories corresponding to it. When the user clicks the "Add" button the information will be stored and the screen will display an update of the total calories.
